1. Introduction
There is a long lasting debate on the entanglement of space and time in cognition. One linguistic context that appears to be well suited to researching this problem is the domain of prepositional expressions of distance because they are articulated both in spatial and temporal terms. However, spatial and temporal uses of prepositions seem to form a sort of semantic amalgamation. One plausible way to find more information about the spatial-temporal relations in prepositions is to gather tangible data from linguistic corpora. The following research report demonstrates how frequently space and time occur in prepositional phrases used to express spatial distance in the British National Corpus.

2. Methodology
This research employs the British National Corpus (henceforth, the BNC), which is a 100 million word collection of samples of written and spoken contemporary British English from a wide range of texts, genres, and registers (see www.natcorp.ox.ac.uk for more information). It examines distance in the sense of topographical distance, i.e. conceptualizations of geographical distance that separates one point from another in physical space. The research is restricted to examining expressions specifying absolute distance, i.e. one denoted in (spatial or temporal) units, e.g. “fifteen miles from York” or “fifteen minutes from York”. Although expressing distance in absolute terms is a basic way of specifying spatial extents, expressions of distance in space are not limited to information explicitly conveyed by spatial terms. However, the aim of this research is not to examine the entirety of ways used for denoting... spatial distance in language, but to observe a general proportion between space and time in prepositional phrases used to express the topographical distance.

The scope of this report is limited to fifteen prepositions commonly used to express spatial relations: across, ahead, along, apart, away, behind, between, beyond, from, off, over, through, to, towards, and within. All prepositions included in this set happen to express temporal relations, as well. Although some of the selected prepositions were regarded in traditional grammars as adverbs, a recent comprehensive grammar of English classifies them as prepositions. The search for representations of the topographical distance in spatial and temporal terms in the BNC was executed using the following lexical pattern:

Quantifier + Spatial or Temporal Unit + Spatial Preposition

In the above pattern, the quantifier is either a cardinal number or a determinative used with countable nouns, e.g. a, an, few, many, several, some, etc. Cardinal numbers are easily identifiable in the BNC thanks to part-of-speech annotation, which marks all cardinal numbers, spelled both in words and digits, with the `<CRD>` tag included in the basic C5 tagset of the corpus. The use of quantifier raises precision of corpus queries by essentially eliminating irrelevant matches sharing the above pattern by coincidence. Units of space measurement selected for analysis include both metric and imperial units typically used in the U.K., also in their American variants of spelling, i.e. kilometre (kilometer), metre (meter), mile, and yard. Units of time measurement include those that are typically used to express distance in space in terms of duration, i.e. minutes, hours, and days. It is noteworthy that for the preposition within a slightly modified pattern, with the preposition put first, was used in queries.

3. Queries

This research is based on the BNC World edition published in 2001. The corpus was searched with SlopeQ, a part-of-speech-sensitive concordancer with support for proximity queries. The number of returned results was set to the maximum of 10000 (available via “Paging” option). All queries were implemented with the default value of 0 for SLOP factor (available via “Slop” option). The “Preserve order” option was set to “yes”. A single asterisk () replaces any number of characters, e.g. [yard] substitutes for “yard, yards, yardstick, etc.” A vertical bar or pipe (|) symbol stands for logical AND, which enables executing multiple queries in a single line. For example, the query [way to|from] substitutes for two separate queries “way to” and “way from”.

The following queries were used:

For spatial units

`[<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some kilometre*|metre*|meter*|mile*|yard* across]`

`[<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some kilometre*|metre*|meter*|mile*|yard* ahead]`

`[<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some kilometre*|metre*|meter*|mile*|yard* along]`

`[<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some kilometre*|metre*|meter*|mile*|yard* apart]`

For temporal units:

<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days across
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days ahead
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days along
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days apart
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days away
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days behind
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days between
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days beyond
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days from
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days off
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days over
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days through
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days to
<CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days towards
[within <CRD>|a|an|few|many|several|some minute*|hour*|day|days]

Implementation of corpus queries based on regular expression syntax enables anyone interested in attesting or expanding this study to further probe the results under the same research conditions.

4. Concordances
A listing of concordance lines retrieved from the BNC with the above queries follows. Queries are presented on yellow background. Results recognized as valid representations of topographical distance are marked with green background. Results recognized as coincidental matches are marked with blue background.
